This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1878 edition. Excerpt: ...the larger one has not been opened since she received it. A few days ago she was impelled by some irresistible influence to open the book, and upon so doing the deeds and receipts for property belong to her mother fell upon the floor. The singular part of the affair is, that on the very next morning her mother died, and in the settling of the estate these papers saved the executors a great deal of trouble. as the property was at that time in Hunterdon County, where the deeds are recorded, as is shown by the receipts, but it is now a part of Mercer County, and no clue could be gained by reference to the Mercer County records." nmm meets. _ " Eighteen years ago," said blind Maggie, "I left. the State Institution for the blind, where I had been nine years in school. I had an honourable discharge, which is the same as graduating. When we were at school we had the bible to read when we chose, but the only one gave us the New Testament and Psalms to ring away with us, and now," said the sightless girl, "there are a great many things God has said to us in his word I shall never know, for no one can spare the time to read the Old Testament through to me, and I am not able to buy it for myself. You know the books for the blind are made at great expense," continued she, " and the loose leaves and raised letters require so much space they are quite cumbersome; besides in a few years the letters press together so one has to get a new book." v soul was stirred for the longing of this blind disciple to read the word, and on writing to the Secretary of the American Bible Society, at New York, I found Maggie was correct as to the price. "The Bible for the blind," said he, " will cost you...
