The Luftwaffe in Colour: The Second World War in Colour Series 1 John Christopher

This unique collection of superb wartime color photographs brings the Luftwaffe – its aircraft and personnel – to life in a dramatically vivid way.

Color photography was still a rare thing in the 1930s and 1940s. Various systems of color photography had been tried, and the Germans had great success with the agfacolor process. This meant that color photographs could be easily produced with basic chemicals and equipment in rudimentary darkrooms close to the action. Propaganda units were armed with Leica cameras and color film and their images appeared in a number of official German publications including the Luftwaffe's own magazine, Der Adler, and books aimed at home front audience. Here, over 100 color and 50 black and white images have been assembled to tell the story of the war as it unfolded.
